FIRST HIGH SCHOOL PARTY OF YEAR IS HELD FRIDAY

Elderly People of Methodist Church to be Guests at Dinner Oct. 13

SPARTA Wis.—A most notable personage has been a recent visitor in Sparta, viz—the superior general, the Very Rev. A. N. Brocken, M. S. C. of Rome, Italy, of the Missionaries of the Sacred Heart of the Roman Catholic Church. The superior general is visiting the various houses of the order. There are five in America, of which this one in Sparta is one. He came to America after a visit in Canada, coming to this city from New York City. After leaving here, he went to San Francisco, from which place he will sail for Australia and the South Sea Islands.

During the superior's stay in Sparta, he with the Missionaries stationed here, decided to build a new Monastery in Sparta, and plans for the building of the same will be made immediately. The missionary work of the Catholic Church in the South Sea Islands is in charge of the Missionaries of the Sacred Heart, and the house at Sparta is one of the headquarters. Rev. C. E. Reipsperger, M. S. C. father superior, is at the head of the Sparta mission house.

Phosphate For Farms of Country

A deposit of phosphate rock, computed to be larger than all the other similar deposits in the world, has been recently discovered in Idaho. Phosphate is the great fertilizer for soil, without which agriculture would perish. Phosphate rock of this sort used to sell before the war from $1 to $5 per ton. Experts of the United States Geological Survey and the state of Idaho estimate that there are in this deposit fully one hundred billion tons. The field is about 500 miles long, 200 miles wide, and is situated in the eastern countries of Idaho, the western counties of Wyoming and extends to Montana on the north and Utah on the south.

Not Beauty Only

These whiter teeth mean safer teeth as well

No doubt the great reason why millions use Pepsodent is to get prettier teeth. It removes the dingy film.

But science has more important objects. Pepsodent brings five effects, and all of them mean better tooth protection.

proved them. Now leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.

Both are embodied in a modern tooth paste—Pepsodent. Every use attacks the film in two effective ways. It also brings three other results which have proved essential.

The ruinous film

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Old methods of brushing do not effectively combat it. So it often lingers long.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look cloudy. Countless teeth are thus made dingy.

Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles. Most of the tooth and gum attacks are now traced to that film.

Fights starch and acid

Pepsodent does what fruit acids do. It multiplies the salivary flow. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents. Every use of Pepsodent multiplies their powers.

Effects are apparent

Millions now know the delightful effects. Any-one who will can quickly see and feel them.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Then read the reasons in the book we send.

A week may bring a life-long change in your teeth cleaning methods. Cut out the coupon now.

Must combat it daily

After diligent research science has found two ways to combat that film. Many careful tests have

Rockefeller's Secret

EDITH, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, richest man in the world, gets into the headlines by "agreeing to disagree" with her husband, Harold F. McCormick. They separate. The most interesting angle of the case is the statement that Mrs. McCormick has been abroad for eight years, studying the new psychology. This again demonstrates that families "run true to form," generation after generation. For investigating is the chief characteristic of the prominent members of the Rockefeller family.

John D. Rockefeller, when he was a young man, was a clerk and bookkeeper in Cleveland. Probably he still would be holding that same job, had it not been for his investigating turn of mind. His investigations convinced him that the petroleum industry, then in its infancy, would be in need of many pipelines and refineries. John D.'s investigations also convinced him that he could not build the pipe lines and refineries unaided. To get results fast, he gathered about him the ablest business talent of his generation—such as Flagler, Rogers, Archbold, Harkness and "Pipe Line" Dan O'Day. Those men built the Rockefeller fortune. Now John D. has his Rockefeller Foundation, investigating disease all over the world. These investigations are controlled by his son, John D., junior, who some years ago exhibited his inquiring turn of mind by heading a grand jury investigation of the white slave traffic, in New York. And now his sister investigates the mind.

In the Rockefeller case, wealth and investigation are twins. Maybe that's the secret of success. Maybe we do not investigate enough. Maybe, lacking the Rockefeller caution and inquisitiveness, most of us are inclined to leap before we look. Interesting and profitable, to study famous families. John Adams was second president of the United States. John Quincy Adams, his son, was sixth president. The votes of many now living put Benjamin Harrison in the White House. His grandfather also was president. How do you account for that? Not just chance. Something that "ran in the family." It will be interesting to trace, in young Theodore Roosevelt, the family traits that made his father famous. Every family has a distinctive trait. What is yours?

Investigate

PEOPLE who canvass La Crosse with petitions for their own financial relief may be deserving, and to stay the hand of charity might be to meddle with the Lord's business. However, charity is competently organized in this city, and the deserving needy who go to the Social Service Society are helped, and helped to help themselves. Therefore it is always possible that when mendicants prefer to do their own soliciting, they want help which does not carry with it the element of self help. In any event, the private citizen is always in danger of being imposed upon, because individuals can not look up the record of every alms seeker who "pan-handles" the town. So many are our deserving poor at this time, and so great the draft upon private generosity, that we must guard carefully against encouraging professional beggary. Probably, therefore, the course of wisdom is to call up the Social Service Society and inquire into the merits of any who come with outstretched hands and a tale of woe. Chances are that while you are at the telephone stealth and haste will spur the heels of the object of your solicitude.

Monkey's Invention

A HIGHLY intelligent orang-utan—possibly the long-sought missing link between monkey and man—creates a sensation in the New York Zoological Gardens. The orang-utan is an anthropoid ape, the kind told about in the Tarzan stories. It has small ears, very little hair, and is about two-thirds as big as a gorilla. It's so much like a human that Mahay natives gave it the name, orang-utan, which means "man of the woods." Orang-utan in the New York zoo, wanting to get out of its cage, hit on the idea of ripping down its steel trapeze bar and using it to pry the cage bars apart. "It has discovered the principle of the lever," says Dr. W. T. Hornaday, the zoo's director. "Finding that it didn't have enough strength to use the lever, it summoned another orang-utan to help it." Scientists now will debate whether the orang-utan conceived the idea of the lever, or whether it was just imitating what it had seen some man do.

Having discovered the principle of the lever or crowbar, the orang-utan is well on the way toward civilization. Civilization, as modern man defines it, rests on machinery. Take all machinery away (all mechanical devices) and all of us soon would be living in the trees and caves. All mechanical movements are based on applications of the principles of the wheel and wedge and the lever used by the caged monkey. If the orang-utan can figure out the wheel and wedge, it's just a question of time until the jungle monsters will have their own automobiles. That is how man started.

How did man happen to discover the lifting power of the lever? Probably like this: He tried to lift a heavy log and couldn't. Exhausted, he sat down to rest on a smaller log thrust crow-bar fashion under the big log. Up went the big log, under his weight. That mystery he figured it out and applied it. The wedge principle probably came to him by pondering how his wedge-shaped teeth split a bone with ease. And the wheel principle probably came when he sat on a loose round stone and noticed that it carried him with it easily when it rolled. If the truth were known, all other human discoveries also have been the result of accident, which is nature's way of periodically unlocking another of her secrets to make it available for us. More power to you, Mr. Orang-utan. In your experiment with the lever, we see a picture of our ancestors emerging from barbarism.

Trade Wars

TWO Kansas farmers use shotguns against each other, in a dispute over the location of a fence separating their farms. A strip of valuable crop-bearing land is involved. Each wants the profits from that strip. Each wants to retain the title. It's a trade war.

You see the same thing duplicated when two nations quarrel and war over a boundary line. In the last analysis, nearly all wars, except those for independence, are trade wars. Greed for trade and wealth sent Germans on the war-path. They wanted to move their fences.

A movement starts in Paris, to establish a world court of justice for the arbitration of international disputes. That is getting down to fundamentals in the campaign to end wars. Nearly all problems are economic problems. Trade follows the flag—and the military flag follows trade.

In Ye Olden Times

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

Unless the rains in the vicinity of La Crosse cease, the late crop of potatoes will be spoiled for the ground is so wet that they will rot before they can be dug out. Black River Falls this morning appealed to President Taft, the governors of the several states and the mayors of all leading cities in the country for food and financial help for its people whose city was wiped out by the flood of October 4. The looting of the ruins is terrible, according to word broadcasted this morning and the two companies of state militia have been ordered to patrol the stricken city and bayonet anyone found stealing. Alma Center, La Crosse and Eau Claire were the first cities to get supplies to the stricken city. The large hay barn of the Goddard estate, located in the marsh near Indian Hill, was destroyed Saturday evening by fire of an unknown origin. Owing to the inaccessibility from the city, the barn was burned without any effort on the part of the fire department to save it. Sixty-five tons of hay were destroyed.

Hunter's bridge is tottering for a fall. At 2 p. m. today a telephone message was received in this city from Warren Shearer who lives near the bridge that an elderly was working on the center pier and it seemed to be weakening. At 3 o'clock another alarm came from Mr. Hansen, who also lives near the bridge. He said the center pier was sagging and threatened to give way. Only an immediate diminution of the flood would save it, he said.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The grand commandery of the Knights Templar of Wisconsin met this morning in Milwaukee. Among officers elected and installed for the coming year was Fred Ring of this city for Grand Treasurer. The Burlington road is rebuilding its entire telegraphic system between La Crosse and Savannah. The old poles will be replaced by new ones and rewired. A new confectionery store is to be opened this week at 224 Main street by Hadass Brothers. The articles of incorporation for the new Presbyterian college to be built here were filed with the register of deeds this afternoon. The site for the new institution was donated by Fred Easton. All that is now necessary to see the college in operation is the securing of the endowment and the erection of the buildings.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The firm of Klein and Luning has been dissolved. Mr. Luning will remain at the old stand on the corner of Pearl and Third streets and Mr. Klein will move into a handsome new store at Fourth and Jay streets. Moses Gilliland of Onalaska has been engaged the past summer in gathering the seeds of wild trees for the Salzer Seed company of this city. He collected a ton and a half during the summer months for which he got $120. The seeds are intended for sale in South Dakota.

Henry Frankson has given up the management of the Centennial Garden, having bought the saloon of August Neumann at Fifth and Market streets. He will be succeeded at the Centennial Garden by John Strude of Winona.

Local organizations of a new soldiers' society are about to be formed here. The society was first organized in Washington and is known as the Society of Loyal Volunteers. Originating with soldiers of the late war, it includes as well as wives and children of the soldiers, all persons employed by the government during the war.

THE PARLOR CAR

By LAURA REID MONTGOMERY

While the Simpsons had lived in Emington they had had a hard time to make both ends meet. After they had moved three stations down the line Joseph began to get more work and Mrs. Simpson was able to use her earnings for her family instead of helping out the earnings of her husband by doing two washings a week at home. The same energy that had impelled her to slave over the wash-chans was now given to other things, and she constantly urged Susan, her nineteen-year-old daughter, to try and blossom out as a well-dressed young lady.

"If you'd just hold your head up, Susan, and study hard there's no telling where you might land," she predicted stitching away at a too-elaborate white frock for the girl.

"But ma, we're just ordinary village folk. Everybody knows to a cent what we have, so why bother? I don't want to land anywhere except here a delicate pink crepe up into her freckled cheeks, that were a sitting white where the golden dust of the freckles had not come, 'in Charlie's cottage. I used to wonder who would want to marry me, and all of the fellows I never thought of him. He's so strong and tall. Don't you think he is the best looking man in Emington?"

Her mother glanced down the long ribbon of road that led toward the quiet village. The small house with the steep green roof was on an ambitious rise of ground that nearly achieved the distinction of being a hill. She could see the roofs of the village and the curling wreaths of gray smoke that swept heavily along the roof clouds above the single track railroad.

"I often think, Susan," said ma dreamily, "what the railroad might bring. Most any one might come in on the noon train—yes," she said in answer to her daughter's questioning glance, "Charlie is good looking, but you might marry better than a blacksmith. You are fresh and pretty—"

The drawing pink became a modified scarlet. "Ma, how can you talk, as though I'd marry to better myself. I love Charlie and I'm proud to think that I'll live in the darling brown cottage that is nearly finished."

Ma's tired ambitious head wagged angrily over her sewing. Susan should be pushed forward in spite of her silly schemes. Ma had insisted upon Susan taking a few singing lessons, and the girl was to sing a solo at Glenora's Hall at Emington. When the time came for the entertainment ma went about with a mysterious, secretive smile on her pursed-up lips. She had finished the fussed-up white lace frock with its intricate trimmings of tiny ruffles and she had even sent away through a mail-order catalogue and bought a pair of white satin slippers with wavy heels that looked so unlike Susan remembered to walk very carefully.

"I guess," said ma when she had fastened the last hook and ribbon and turned the embarrassed Susan around for the family gaze, "that no one who looks at her today will remember that I used to raise in two big washings a week to keep us going. With Susan's voice and looks there's no telling how far she'll go."

"Ain't she good to Emington in sing tonight?" queried Freddy excitedly. "Stupid, we're all going," yelled Lucy, holding out a tightly knitted head. "Ma, iron my plait now so they'll be good and fuzzy. Shall I have a white dress like Susan's after she's married to Charlie?"

"You never can tell who might come in on the train," mused ma, twitching at Susan's sash. "Be sure you sing just as loud as you can and don't let that Sorrigs girl think she can sing better'n you. Just because she's taken six months. You've got a natural soprano."

Susan, nervous and uneasy, nodded meekly. If her throat felt the same when the program opened she knew that she would be unable to sing a single note, but she remained silent.

"Now," said ma grandly as she emerged from the ticket office with her tickets. "I've done something big for Susan. Her's the Banner coming now, down the track. You children and pa stand ready to hop on, and be sure and turn back some seats, so's we can all ride facing each other. You, Susan, are going to ride in the parlor car. Here's the ticket for your ride. Mr. Meadows started when I asked him to reserve a chair in the parlor car for us. I've read that only the best people travel that way, and there's no telling who—" her eager voice was drowned in the approaching roar of the Banner train from St. Louis, and before the dazed Susan could ask how much the reservation cost she had been helped up the steps by the colored porter and the train flashed off.

Susan kept her eyes fixed on the fading landscape for a few miles, then finally raised her eyes. Her fellow passengers paid scant attention to the little, freckled country girl in her unsuitable frock of lace and floppy hat. She vaguely sensed the difference in clothing and tried to keep her white satin shoe foot under the foot-rest. She was glad when her snail was called and she trotted to the vestibule to descend. At the farther end of the train she saw Charlie eagerly helping down him and the numerous members of ma's family.

"Why, where's Susan?" she heard him exclaim as pa gingerly stepped down from the high step of the day coach and counted heads. "Susan," ma's voice was replete with pride, "come in the parlor car. You know, she's aced to sing at the hall tonight."

Charlie's face clouded. He went slowly toward the small, white-clad figure tottering along anxiously toward him. "Susan, I feel ashamed of you," he said sternly. "Why should you ride in a chair car and your ma go in the day coach? If you've got such notions as that I don't think you're cut out for a working man's wife. Be a duke coming to take you to the ball or do you want me to help you along in those satin shoes?"

Susan's eyes misted suddenly, but she was too shy to reply. Pa, who had followed, intervened.

WAR—OR NO WAR?

Everybody is talking about the Disarmament Conference. Great men from all over the world are coming to meet together in Washington, on November 11, at the invitation of President Harding. It is a wish to become acquainted with these big men, and the writer of this article, at which this article is the first.

Charles Evans Hughes

Not many people know that race-track gambling was responsible for the early fame of Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of State and leader of the American delegation at the coming Disarmament Conference.

Now don't stop here, with the idea that Mr. Hughes was a gambler. On the contrary, it was his effective action as Governor of New York, his action in stopping race-track gambling, that first brought him into the limelight nationally.

Mr. Hughes, the son of a poor country preacher, began life in Glen Falls, New York, in 1862. His father and mother were well educated, and young Charles was taught at home. As a result of this home training, when he entered Brown University he carried off all the honors in sight.

Having decided to be a lawyer, he attended Columbia law school, teaching the practice of law immediately after graduation. His good judgment and fairness and his hatred of trickery brought him into a race. So, in 1907 he became Governor of New York and in 1909 was elected Governor for the second time.

He was appointed Associate Chief Justice of the Supreme Court in 1910, and held this position until 1916, when he resigned to become Republican candidate for President. Although defeated, he lost by only 11 electoral votes.

When Harding became President, he saw that Mr. Hughes was just the man to be Secretary of State, and Mr. Hughes returned to the service of his country.

The Secretary of State is such a hard-working man that during his first two years as Governor of New York he had only eleven days of vacation.

ONE REEL YARNS

A FEUD IN LITTLE ITALY

Tony Richard and Giuseppe Tortello had gone to school together since they started in the first grade. In all Little Italy there were not two closer companions.

Every one noticed it, therefore, when one day Tony and Giuseppe came to school on opposite sides of the street. The boys quickly went round, Tony's father had quarreled with Giuseppe's father over ward politics. The two families were now lined against each other, and the boys, though they did not quite understand what it was all about, were taken up the feud without hesitation.

Now instead of going home arm in arm, they called each other names, threw stones, and made dark threats. In the evening Tony's father would twist his mustache angrily, pound the table, and declare that some day he would "get it" out of Tony. Tony, he'd "get Giuseppe." It was just the same as Giuseppe's.

The fight became more and more bitter. One night after school the two boys were going home with their respective gangs. Tony came to a corner, Giuseppe, Giuseppe tried to trip his former chum as he passed. In a minute two figures were writhing on the sidewalk. A crowd gathered.

The boys rolled, first one on top, and then the other, to the edge of the sidewalk. Tony jumped up on top when they reached the curb. Tony made a mighty effort and the other boy lost his balance. He was thrown into the street. All the crowd was on "the sidewalk" to avoid the traffic, so there was no one to catch Giuseppe. Tony struggled up to see a truck bearing down on his opponent.

Like a flash, Tony remembered the old friendship. It was not his enemy who was in danger. It was his pal. He threw himself forward and tugged at Giuseppe. The truck slowed, but the back wheel struck Tony, just as he shoved Giuseppe out of the way.

That evening Mr. Tortello and Mr. Richard stood by the bed where a very still, heavily-limbed Tony lay. "Giuseppe, he once bruised," said Mr. Tortello brokenly. "If Tony gets well, I make right. I make right." Mr. Richard passed the back of his hand over his eyes. "We both make right," he said, and they shook hands.

Drop-kicking

Written expressly for this newspaper by Henry Penfield

Northwestern University Varsity Team, 1921

The first and perhaps most important thing in drop-kicking is to have the ball fall straight, point-down, to the ground. This is difficult if you hold the ball between your hands, one on one side of the ball and the other on the opposite side.

Most drop-kickers hold the ball vertically, with the fingers of the left hand on the bottom point and those of the right on the top. By quickly drawing away the left hand the ball falls straight to the ground.

Before receiving the ball the kicker should know just where he is going to kick it. This makes it unnecessary to aim the kick after he has the ball in his hands. Once he has received the ball he should not take his eye off it till it leaves his foot.

To be able to "place" a kick a man must first know how to kick accurately. Acquire accuracy first, and then distance, start by standing about fifteen yards from the goal posts and placing the ball between them. Then go back a little for each kick. Soon you will not only be an accurate drop-kicker but a good distance kicker.

CALLAHAN ANNOUNCES DATE FOR WISCONSIN GOOD SPEECH WEEK

State Schools to Join in Movement to Raise Standards of Everyday Speech

MADISON, Wis.—November 6 to 12 has been designated as "American Speech week" in Wisconsin schools by state Superintendent John Callahan. This is in accordance with national plans to arouse public sentiment to the need of raising the standards of everyday speech.

That Wisconsin may be adequately represented in the observance of this campaign, State Superintendent John Callahan has issued a circular letter to all the county and city superintendents and supervising principals of the state, requesting them to present the matter to the teachers under their jurisdiction to the end that a united effort may be made to carry out a suitable recognition and observance of this event.

The purpose of speech week is to arouse public sentiment to the need and the possibility of improving the speaking voice and raising the standard of speech used in every day life. The scope of the observance varies according to the interest of those in charge and according to local conditions and facilities. In Wisconsin the observance will doubtless be in charge of a group of school men and women in the various communities, with the assistance and cooperation of representatives of women's clubs.

It is recommended that the general committee call to their assistance pupils from all grades of the schools and that from the ranks of the students should be selected subcommittees on legislative, posters and placards, class activities, programs and special features. Better speech shows will be used in abundance during speech week.

SALVATION ARMY WORKING ON BIG PROGRAM FOR YEAR

There is nothing very new or startling about the Salvation Army's plan for the coming year. It expects to administer relief to more than twenty thousand needy human beings in its usual manner of efficiency, tempered with humanity, in Wisconsin.

For there is nothing very new or startling about hunger and need. While they last, the Salvation Army expects to be at work in the same old way. It is not an emergency organization, though it showed how it could rise to an emergency in the world war. It is a day-by-day organization, a year-after-year organization, an organization that is always there—just as the need is always there.

Years of training and a thoroughly efficient organization keep the Salvation Army from ever being haphazard in its relief work. The program for the coming year has already been thought over, and figured over, and prayed over, to the last detail. What remains now is to get the money to put over the work.

The work of the Salvation Army does not grow less. As the years go by Wisconsin becomes more crowded with unfortunates and more cluttered up with sin and poverty and disease. The army is the great scavenger that applies the healing touch to all the sore spots in the state. It works quietly but effectively in all the dark corners of the blackest back yards and it needs your help to carry on.

The annual appeal for the Salvation Army will soon be on. So when you are called upon, don't forget, now let us help our own.

TOY SUGGESTS SERIOUS INVENTION

Most every one is familiar with the toy which consists of a monkey running up and down a string. Pull the string and the little fellow climbs aloft, but release it and he will drop gently to the bottom. The principle of this toy has been made use of by a French inventor in the design of a climbing device which can be made to move on or down along a hanging rope. It is designed principally as a fire escape, but many inventions of this character permit of the person getting safely to the bottom, but there is no means of returning it for others who may be trapped. With the use of the new device a rescuer may take one trip after another to the upper part of a burning building and save one person after another. It is said to be available for painters, riggers, firemen and others who may have occasion to travel about over the exterior of buildings.

Cleopatra's "Mock Pearl of History"

The legend that Cleopatra dissolved a pearl in vinegar and drank the solution is declared to be one of the "mock pearls of history" because no acid which can safely be taken into the human stomach will dissolve the oyster's contribution to the decoration of mankind. But there is in the story of the Egyptian queen, as in every old story legends, a particle of truth. The pearl, unlike the diamond and other precious stones, may undergo changes. Some pearls will dissolve the pearl, but vinegar is not one of them.

CHICKS IN EGGS KILLED BY BLAST; WOMAN CLAIMS AS DAMAGES PRICE THEY MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT IN MARKET

WAUKESHA, Iowa.—Albion county, Iowa, and the Iowa state highway commission are facing a damage suit that is unique. A woman living on a farm near Waukesha raises chickens and last spring had a number of old ladies setting when along came a road construction crew who did some blasting in the road adjacent to her farm. The commission from the dynamite blast, according to her claim, killed the chickens which were nearly due to hatch and she took them dead from the shell. She filed no damage claim at that time, but waited until last week when she filed with the Albion county board of supervisors a claim, not for pay for the eggs, or even for the chicks which might have hatched, but for the price she might have received for the chickens which might have hatched and might have lived to market age, and it not have been for the fatal blast.

Her itemized bill, covering six pages, together with a prelude of two pages and a footnote, sets forth that at the time of the blast she had 120

TEACHERS RETURNING TO STATE BECAUSE OF NEW PENSION SYSTEM

Law Tends to Keep Experienced Instructors in Wisconsin Schools

MADISON, Wis.—Teachers are returning to Wisconsin schools because of the new pension fund law passed by the last legislature. R. E. Loveland, secretary of the annuity board administering the law, says. He declares that the law is working to keep experienced instructors in the schools of the state.

The annuity board meets November 5, to consider policies of investing funds paid in by teachers and the state, for administration of the law. Instructors of all state educational institutions outside of Milwaukee contribute 5 per cent of their monthly salary to the retirement fund, which is then invested by the annuity board. The new law is being rapidly rounded into working shape, Mr. Loveland said. The problem of investment of the funds is said to be the principal question in dispute, and will be settled

KILLING FROSTS PUT END TO CROP GROWTH IN STATE

Fall Plowing and Other Farm Work Reported Well Advanced

MADISON, Wis.—Killing frosts in Wisconsin at the end of last week terminated crop growth in the state, according to the weekly bulletin of the crop reporting service. The effect of the frost was said to have been beneficial by causing crops still in the field to ripen, and by hastening harvest.

Farm work is reported to be well in advance with much plowing, clearing, and repairing already done by farmers over the state. Corn husking and shredding is said to be progressing rapidly except in the southern counties, where it has been too wet for work during the week. The corn ear work has been damaging the crop in the field.

Potato vines were killed by the frost, with the result that the tubers will now ripen fast and hasten digging. White grub worms are said to have been working on the tubers, reducing their quality considerably.

Winter grains which were early sown have made a sufficient growth to enter the winter, according to the report which says that soil condition for this crop have been excellent during the past week. The new seedlings of hay have recovered from the drought of mid-summer and are reported to be in good condition to enter the winter.

Cabbage has not made the growth expected from weather conditions. The yield will be slightly over half of that produced in 1920, the report declares. The onion crop is also said to be very short.

Sugar beet harvest has begun with a yield above average. The livestock condition is reported as from fair to good.

ARCADIA SUFFERS BIG FIRE WHICH RUINS BUILDINGS

Two Structures Burn With Eight Automobiles Stored in a Garage

Arcadia was the scene of one of the most spectacular fires there in recent years when flames engulfed the Conrad Hulberg garage and the adjoining barn belonging to Eugene Brothers and Bertie, general store proprietors, causing a loss estimated at $11,000 on the two buildings and the value of eight automobiles.

The garage which was valued at $10,000, was partly covered by insurance. The barn is a total loss.

The horses in the barn were saved, but all of the eight cars in the garage were totally destroyed. No explosions took place during the course of the fire, as no large gasoline tank was kept in the garage.

The cars destroyed and their owners were Hulberg, Cole S. Brining, Chevrolet; Smith, Oldsmobile; Erickson, Paige; Misch, Dorr; Jaenickel, Ford; Kiehl, make of car unknown; and Hohmann, Buick.

WILD FLOWERS ARE BEING EXTERMINATED

Lovers of nature are blaming the automobile for extermination of the wild flowers which formerly brightened the roadsides and meadows. Each spring witnesses the descent of untold legions of thoughtless flower-gatherers who ravish the flora with hardly a thought of the damage they are doing, tearing away the flowers by the roots and robbing the plants of their only means of reproduction. As a rule these flowers last but a very short time after they are pulled and are thrown away, the roadsides being littered with the discarded blooms. The remedy is not in the prohibition of picking but in impressing upon the pickers that they should not gather too many. The situation is said to be worse since the automobiles make it so easy for people to get out into the country and to carry great bunches of flowers which they could not handle ordinarily.

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

STEWARDSHIP IS BIG RESPONSIBILITY IN WORLD'S WORK

Rev. E. C. Dixon Speaks of Important Trust Given to Man

At the First Methodist church yesterday morning the topic of the sermon was "Stewardship." Using the Scripture 1 Peter 1:17, "Be ye therefore of sound mind, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God," the Rev. E. C. Dixon spoke in part as follows:

"Stewardship is one of the staple topics of the Christian teaching to which frequent reference is made. Some teachings stick easily in the human mind, others seem to slip away just as easily. The universally accepted truths of religion are those that deal with the power and mercy of God.

"Those truths are often held in the crudest form with no thought of their relation to any other teaching, taking no account of our obligations.

"But we cannot think of God either as king or as father without realizing that He genuinely rules in the affairs of men and it would be unthinkable that God should establish any form of government in which intelligent beings were to stand in no other relation than recipients of the divine grace forever. Recipients of that grace are not but our continued enjoyment of it is conditioned on a filial relationship which includes obedience to the divine law.

"We take for granted today acceptance of the idea that God is our Father and that Jesus is, as Peter declared, both Lord and Christ. And we observe that the same Peter who declared the Lordship of Jesus called upon us to be of sound mind as good stewards of the manifold grace of God. The great words of that statement are 'stewards' and 'grace.'

"It is to be noted that in the Scripture a grace is an unmerited gift of any kind, not necessarily a spiritual gift as seems commonly to be thought. The highest grace we may indeed say are those associated with the gift of the spirit of our Savior himself but other gifts are included in the manifold grace. Every temporal and material thing that we enjoy is as truly a grace of God as is the gift of His spirit.

"The great teaching of Peter's word is that we are stewards of all these gifts of God. They are given to us for our use and enjoyment to be sure, but never to be exhausted and dissipated upon our own selfish plans and purposes but evermore conscious of our stewardship.

"The trustee is remunerated for his work. George Vincent left the presidency of the University of Minnesota to take the trusteeship of the Rockefeller foundation at $15,000 a year. Without remuneration it would be impossible for the trustee to do his work. Hence adequate care of the trustee is the first care of the one who commits the trust. That is not a matter of selfishness on the part of the trustee but a matter of necessity. God's first care is not to get out of us something we do not have, but having given us wonderful gifts He does expect us to use them according to His own will.

"Hence it is that we are called to be workers together with God and our trust means that our service is to continue as long as there is any one to be served.

"In rare instances people have been so impressed with their sense of stewardship that they have been over-scrupulous with the mistaken idea that they were personally responsible for the salvation of all the world. With the vast majority it is quite otherwise and little attention is paid to anyone outside their own immediate circle. It is quite possible even for very good people to show this sense of stewardship to equate to kindly feeling or piety but it must be the evident duty of every Christian to inquire as to the limits of his trust.

"There are those in physical misery who call loudly for our ministry, those in ignorance who must be taught, those who are without the kingdom of God to whom the message of Christ must be carried.

"A few serve directly in response to such calls as those but the vast majority must serve indirectly through the labor of others.

"What is to be the measure of that indirect service? Who is to determine it? If no collector comes around is there no guidance to be had on this important matter? Now we are to appear before God to give account and if there is no standard of accounting we are placed in a most awful situation, our eternal destiny depends upon it, and nobody would know.

Responsibilities Shown
"In past years the Ladies Home Journal has suggested budgets for the home expenditures in which religious obligations were classed with amusements, the theater, etc., but some might question the validity of the Journal's judgment. Others have found their light in the special appeals that come to us from starving China, suffering Armenia, the orphans of Central Europe, the heathen of India, the afflicted of our own land. But what assurance have we that response to such calls discharges our stewardship for the manifold grace of God?

"Great progress has been made in recent years. In every church in America people by thousands contribute weekly for local support and outside benevolence. Stewardship in some form has taken its abiding place in the religious life of our day. It has been well said to be the present interpretation of the Bible idea of holiness. We recognize ourselves as responsible before God for right use of what we have.

"And yet many are feeling in the darkness for a standard. We confidently believe that the search may end where the ideal of stewardship is found, that is in the Bible. The old law said, 'The title is the Lord's' and ought to be, shall be, or would be.

RECOGNITION

The source of suffrage powers, presented to the nation last winter, was stored away in the dusty basement of the Capitol. Then the National Women's Party expressed resentment at this treatment of the gift. Now the statuette has been placed in the main corridor of the Capitol directly under the dome.

about right, but is. And in controversy with the Pharisees, Jesus said, 'This ought ye to have done (that is pay the tithes) and not left the other undone.' (That is justice and mercy). Of course tithing excuses no other duty. It is not for some to be pious and others to pay tithes. It is for all to keep all the commandments of God.

There is more scripture sanction for the tithing than there is for the Sabbath day. Like every other law it is not to be observed in the hardness of the letter as imposed from without, but in the beauty of the spirit as an ideal accepted from within. As the Sabbath might be violated in its letter to save property or life, so the tithing might be varied for special considerations which we might consider. Doubtless offer but the standard is established beyond controversy.

"And as people of sound mind we shall be stewards of the manifold grace of God."

MEN NEED CHURCH DECLARES KINNEY IN ADDRESS SUNDAY

Secretary of Y. M. C. A. is Speaker at the Presbyterian Church

"Men need the church, and the church needs men," said Secretary H. H. Kinney of the Y. M. C. A. in his address at First Presbyterian Church, Sunday evening. He was the guest of the Men's Fellowship League, under whose auspices the meeting was held.

Attention was called to the larger place which women occupy in general church activities and of the apparent neglect of many men, who are supposed to be members.

"If on Sunday morning, you go along any alley where good garages are found, you will find many of them open and the owners engaged in what they seem to regard a 'necessary' business—washing automobiles, or oiling them up for an afternoon spin," said the speaker. Attention was also called to several of the vital problems which men of the churches should feel a responsibility in solving. Religious indifference of youth, the sex question, the regard of law in the matter of liquor violations, the lack of interest in Americanization and the general ethical laxity resulting from the reaction since the war, were among the reasons given why the men should support the church.

The Fellowship, Quarters of the church, led by C. V. Johnson rendered several selections, and the usual "men's chorus" was in place. Arrangement was made of the plans for the special double choir, which is to be a feature of the Harvest Festival Program on October 23rd.

PROSECUTOR CHOICE HOLDS UP TRIAL OF MARTIN LEMBERGER

May Again Appeal to Waive to Direct Attorney General to Act for State

MADISON, Wis.—Choice of a prosecutor to carry the case against Martin Lemberger, charged with murder of his seven-year-old daughter Annie, in 1911, is holding up an early trial. Judge A. C. Reppmann has not determined who he will select to prosecute in view of the refusal of A. O. Stulen, Madison attorney, who defended John A. (Jugoslav) Johnson during the hearings on his pardon application which brought out the murder charge against Lemberger.

The superior court judge may again appeal to Governor Blaine asking him to direct the attorney general to carry the case in the name of the state, or he might name a prominent criminal lawyer.

Martin Lemberger is out of jail on $10,000 bond. His wife and son, charged with perjury, were each released on $1,000 bonds.

Johnson will remain in the state prison, continuing to serve his life sentence, while the trial of Lemberger is carried on.

WISCONSIN D. A. R. MEETING TODAY IN ANNUAL CONVENTION

President of National Organization Attends Badger Sessions

OSHKOSH, Wis.—Large numbers of delegates arrived in this city Monday morning for the state conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution, among them being Mrs. Anne Rogers Minors of Waterford, Conn., president general of the national organization of the D. A. R., and R. D. Hartman of Milwaukee, state regent. Mrs. Morris of Minnesota, vice president general, is also expected to attend. She is chairman of the national committee on historical spots.

This morning was given over to registration of delegates at the Century clubhouse, where all the business meetings will be held this afternoon, Tuesday and Wednesday morning. At this afternoon's session, Mrs. E. M. Crane, regent of the Oshkosh chapter, was to give the address of welcome, the response to be made by Mrs. C. F. Eckels of Janesville. Mrs. Hartman will name the conference committees, greetings will be given by other state chapters and the annual report of the state regent presented. Mrs. Wilson of Madison of Milwaukee, state director, will also give a report. Tea will be served at 5:30 o'clock at the Guild hall of Trinity Episcopal church.

This evening a lecture will be given by Dr. S. A. Barrett, director of the public museum at Milwaukee, on "The Village of Aztlan." This will be followed by a reception at the home of Mrs. Crane. Tuesday morning reports will be offered by the regents of the various state chapters, followed by luncheon. The election of officers will be an important feature of Tuesday afternoon, also an auto ride and dinner. In the evening there will be a concert. At the closing meeting Wednesday morning, reports will be given concerning the thirtieth continental congress, and resolutions will be adopted. The city has been attractively decorated with American flags in honor of the direct descendants of the heroes of the revolutionary war.

STATE ASSEMBLYMAN REFUSES TO COMPLY WITH POTATO RULES

Declines to Pay Inspection Fees Required Under New Marketing Law

MADISON, Wis.—Assemblyman J. D. Granding of Oneida county is reported by the state department of markets to have refused to comply with the compulsory potato inspection laws in shipping his tubers to market. He is said to have advised the department in a letter that he did not intend to pay the inspection fee required.

As a member of the assembly the roll shows that Granding voted for the marketing law in its original form, voted indefinitely to postpone amendments that would have emancipated it. Commissioner Edward Nordman says that the department intends to prosecute unless the assemblyman agrees to have his potatoes inspected, and pay the inspection fee.

Nearly 300 inspectors are in the field to grade the Wisconsin potato crop of this year. They are entirely supported by the shippers who pay a small fee on each carload of their product that they send to market.

The department of markets says this inspection service is being generally complied with, and working successfully, except in a few instances. Some shippers have started an action to determine constitutionality of the inspection powers, but while carrying on their legal battle, have complied with the statute with regard to grading.

REORGANIZATION OF STUDENT GOVERNING BODY IS PROPOSED

MADISON, Wis.—Reorganization of the student council and the executive and judicial branch of student self-government at the University of Wisconsin, is recommended by a special committee of the student senate which will report soon. The committee recommends a modified set of customs for freshmen to conform to, and would place enforcement in the hands of the court.

"The present system is not self-government, but a hybrid between faculty control and student government by which neither exercises full responsibility and neither exercises sufficient authority to enforce order," the resolution declares.

Recommendation is made that the class rush be retained along with green caps.

Goggles Save the Workmen's Eyes

A few years ago the accident to eyes were the most common incidents in the fields of industry, but this class of casualty has been greatly cut down by the general use of goggles in the workshops. At first the men could not be induced to wear them, but when their attention was repeatedly called to the number of accidents and the possibilities of saving their eyes by the use of protective glasses, they have been gradually adopted, so that their presence in the workshops is almost general.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

The following applications for marriage licenses have been made at the county clerk's office:
Harry Mueller, La Crosse, and Evelyn Marie Le, town of Campbell.
Carl John Stepe and Hazel C. Ausrud, both of La Crosse.

LOADING U. S. FOOD FOR RUSSIA

This picture which has just reached America from Filipe, Latvia, shows Russians, working under the direction of American Relief Administration officers, loading American food for transport across the border into Russia, where thousands are dying from famine. The bags of food shown here were taken from the supplies already in Europe, where the A. R. A. is feeding babies of other countries. Thus no time was lost in rushing aid to the starvation areas.

NEW YORKER DIES OF ANTHRAX CONTRACTED FROM SHAVING BRUSH

Succumbs Six Hours After Case is Diagnosed as Anthrax

NEW YORK.—Michael F. Farley, former member of congress from the Fourteenth New York district, died in Bellevue hospital Sunday of anthrax, believed to have been caused by infection from a shaving brush. Mr. Farley died exactly six hours and thirty-five minutes after he had walked into the hospital to find out what was the matter with him. Physicians said he had the malady in a singularly malignant form.

According to physicians, Mr. Farley must have contracted the disease from an infected brush while shaving himself last Tuesday or Wednesday. He said it was a new brush.

Appearance of a pimple on his chin Thursday was the first symptom. Saturday he could hardly walk from the pain and his face was badly swollen. At Bellevue hospital Dr. Munday's diagnosis of anthrax was verified by Drs. Peers and Russell, who attended the patient. When Mr. Farley arrived he walked from his taxi to the contagious ward after undergoing diagnosis and was able to talk about his case for a while. So malignant was the disease, however, that he soon lost consciousness and was too weak to respond to the usual anti-anthrax treatment. This consists of injections of a serum discovered by Dr. Douglas Semers, chief of the Bellevue pathological service and an expert on anthrax.

MEDICINE IN THE MARKET BASKET

The real health dispensary isn't the chemist's shop, but the grocery store. Pills, ointments and lotions are expensive. Vegetables are cheap—and every one is a medicine chest.

Salads, spinach, tomatoes, headcabbage, indigestion are invariably the result of improper diet.

Thin people should eat potatoes with almost every meal. Stout or full-blooded people should eat sparingly of potatoes. Potatoes are most nutritious when taken mashed with milk and butter. The best way to have them cook it is in the skins.

Anemic persons should eat plenty of beet root. Beet root enriches the blood and makes more blood. Watercress is our most effective blood purifier and tonic, although onions, raw or cooked, are fine for the blood. Celery, besides being good for the nerves, is also excellent for rheumatism. Spinach relieves kidney trouble, and parsnips, made into wine, cures lumbago.

MANCHESTER, Eng.—The Manchester Watch committee, official movie censors, have refused to sanction the public exhibition of the film, "The Dawn of the World." The film deals with incidents from the Bible.

Penalizing Helplessness

YOU'RE toiling today for your children. As a parent one of your great ambitions is to make opportunities for them that you did not have when you were young. You want to be able, in addition, to give them a "start" when they embark in life for themselves. You love them—

But what will all this toil on your part avail you or them if you're unintentionally neglecting their physical welfare. Accurate statistics show that one child in every four has defective vision, (but do not need medical attention) and that means that hundreds of thousands of children are growing into manhood and womanhood under a serious handicap, which may finally result even more seriously.

Dullness in school work more often is an indication of poor vision than of an inherent sluggish mentality. It may be that your child is slaving at study, and smarting under the knowledge of his backwardness because his vision does not permit a free and proper use of his faculties. He is being blamed, perhaps, for something for which he is not responsible.

Poor vision in children, in many, many cases, can not be detected except by a scientific examination. But if there are any indications which are often attributed to poor vision, such as unnatural positions in reading, dullness in school work, headaches, etc., the wise course is to have the child's eyes examined.

Poisoned Brain Causes Worry. Worry is described as the bane of the middle-aged man. The tendency to worry is an indication that the brain has been poisoned, with a resulting change in its physical structure and the same lies in the attention to the general health. Toxins in the blood is responsible for making "mountains out of mole hills." If you worry occupy your time with some employment that takes your attention, and wholesome. These statements are made by a well-known physician, who has given the matter some attention and he has written a big book on the subject.

WHEN THE FESTIVE CORK IS NOT CORKING

Don't waste your old corks. They have many excellent uses.

Corks dipped in paraffin are excellent firelighters. A cork is an ever-ready planchman. And if lubby, before shaving, draws his razor through a cork, it will give the steel a keener edge.

Stains on cutlery can be removed with salt rubbed with a cork. Silver can be cleaned with a cork dipped in alumina powder. Aluminum may be cleaned with a cork and sand. Stains on polished wood, paint, or wall-paper can usually be rubbed out with a soft, dry cork, and marks on brown boots can be taken out if a cork is used which has been rubbed over the inside of a banana skin.

A serviceable little oil-burner for the table can be made with about thirty corks of ordinary stout bottle size.

Stand the corks upright on end, and thread a darning needle with strong wire. Pierce one cork through its center (from side to side) with the needle and draw the wire through, one end. Proceed to pierce each of the other corks and draw them tightly in a circle round the first cork, securing each with a knot as you go. A second circle of corks will complete your mat. A few bands of wire round the mat will give added strength.

PHIL DOUGLAS, 4-2

Yankees Hold Lead Until Eighth Inning When Burns Starts Rally for Victory

MANY HEROES IN EIGHTH INNING; GIANTS IN FORM

Douglas Master of Situation Allowing Yanks Two Hits

NEW YORK—The great Babe Ruth finally struck his long awaited blow Sunday afternoon, but it was in a dying cause. When the slugger's long drive—the first home run of the series—disappeared from view past the corner of the right field grandstand, the Giants were in possession of a two-run lead and not even of a two-run game.

Before 28,000 persons, the noisiest and most partisan of the present world's series, the Yankees lost the fourth game, 4 to 2, and now face a task that would test the mettle of any ball team.

The eighth inning of the contest was the big inning of the series. In that space of a quarter hour or so the Giants rose in their might, swept over the powerless Mays with the same fury that they swept over lesser pitchers on Friday, and rescued a game that seemed well nigh lost.

Giants Start Assault

For seven innings they had pressed Mays with a steady attack, but the only result had been two harmless singles and a row of ephors on the score board in center field.

It looked dark for the McGraw cause. Mays was pitching with cunning and ease and the Yankees were only two innings removed from their third victory in the series, a triumph that would have given them a tremendous edge. This was the setting for a furious assault, which netted four base hits, two of them singles, one a double and one a triple.

One must go almost all the way down the batting order to name all the heroes of this eighth inning. First of all was Phil Mousel, who swept Mays' feet from under him with a three bagger to start the inning.

Next came little bawling, obscure and unused, whose line single to right drove Mousel home with the tying run. Then there is big Frank Snyder, a slow footed giant who hunted and beat it out, leaving Mays on his knees.

literally and figuratively, starting in amazement at this sudden turn of events. The quiet Burns comes next, for it was his smashing double to left field which sent in the two runs that decided the issue.

Douglas Holds Them

But the biggest hero of all should go to Shufflin' Phil Douglas, whose long arms and round shoulders kept fanned enough power to keep even Huggins' great swarms at a distance.

On only two occasions was Douglas anything but complete master of the situation, and he pitched a game that for skill, care and headwork was a masterpiece.

STUART WINS FINAL PRELIM CONTEST ON FRIDAY EVENING

Bodega Club Wins Special Prize Offered for Highest Score in Preliminaries

In the final preliminary contest Friday which was held at Sheldon's room Friday evening, F. A. Stuart won the final contest from Ross Appleman who played for Sheldon's parlor. The score was 100 to 32. Ross Appleman is considered one of the best pocket-billiard players in the city, but Stuart was in excellent form making several good runs. The highest score was 26.

Mr. Stuart has visited this city four times in the past four years and has met all comers but no one has been able to defeat him. The highest score made against him was 96 made by F. L. Parkhurst during his present visit.

A special prize of $10.00 was offered by Mr. Stuart to the room which defeated him which made the highest score against him. The Bodega won with a score of 96 won the preliminary prize.

The regular schedule of the league begins next Monday. Sheldon at Bodega Tuesday night; David at S. & H. Wednesday night; Wittenberg at Safford Thursday night; Roth at Pyett Friday night; Bodega at Mousel. All games start at 8:30. After the first week each room will play two games, one at home and one away.

COLONELS FORFEIT WHEN FANS RIOT

Louisville Crowds Swarm on Field Twice After Unpopular Decisions

LOUISVILLE.—Frustrated by the number of close decisions that were being given against the home club in the fourth game of the Louisville-Baltimore series, 3,000 fans twice invaded the bleachers and evidenced their displeasure by swarming into the diamond.

Police, with the aid of the players, persuaded the fans to return to their seats the first time, but when Empire County of the American association called Jack Henry safe at first base in a play on which he appeared to be an easy out, the police were powerless to disperse the surging fans and the game was forfeited to Baltimore, 5 to 0.

Baltimore led by 12 to 4 when the game came to its precipitated end and by 9 to 3 when the first mass obnoxious was registered by the bleacher boys.

The fans made no move to harm either Connolly or Empire McGowan of the International league, until police and players were in the act of escorting them from the field, and then fans pelted them with cushions. No one was hurt.

The fans did not take seriously their charges into the diamond. They seemed more bent on ending a game which they knew full well was lost to Louisville and which had dragged for more than two hours, then they were doing badly harm to the umpires.

Louisville has the reputation of being a "cold baseball town." Bats here do not root with the vigor of those of other cities and Louisville has seen no demonstrations like the two staged on Sunday for years and years. The score:

Baltimore	002 300 402—12
Louisville	000 000 100—4
Baltimore	002 300 402—12

Light Lost By Dirt

The value of clean lamps and lamp fixtures is not generally appreciated, and so the dust and dirt is often allowed to rest upon them undisturbed for a long time. Attention to this matter was recently shown by test to result in an increase of one-third in the amount of illumination in a factory. After the demonstration it was decided by the owners to employ a man to give his attention to cleaning the lamps and renewing them when they get to the inefficient stage.

YANKS AND GIANTS ENTER FRAY MONDAY WITH EVEN BREAK IN NUMBER OF WINS

NEW YORK.—Cloudy, misty weather prevailed at 7 o'clock Monday morning with an official forecast for rain. The forecaster was of the opinion, however, that the rain would hold off until the Giants and Yankees had completed their fifth world's series game.

NEW YORK.—On even terms again, Yankees and Giants meet Monday in the fifth game of the world's series and both may elect to try for the edge with the hurriers they used in the second contest—Waite Hoyt for the Americans and Art Nehf for the Nationals.

The Giants rallied to a hitting bee against under-handed Carl Mays on Sunday while "Shufflin'" Phil Douglas tossed his freakiest curves and won their second game, 4 to 2.

Hoyt, the Brooklyn youth who shut out the Giants in the second meeting of the teams allowing but two hits, one a scratch, appears to be Huggins' only hope to put the Yanks in front again. Giant partisans declare he cannot possibly maintain the hurling pace he set on last Thursday while the Giants themselves, voy they will pummel the shoots of any pitcher Huggins sends to the rubber.

Yanks to Fight

There has been a lot of talk about the Giants lost and found batting eyes. Now the Yankees are having their say. The Yankees made runs out of fluky hits and great base running in the first two games but they were helpless in the hands of Jess Barnes on Friday and Douglas Sunday. Now they are sore and assert they will pound Nehf or any other moundsman McGraw sends against them.

"My team hasn't batted anywhere close to form," declared Manager Huggins. "It is improbable that they will go through the entire series without having several batting rumpages. You may look for one any time now."

Ruth's injured arm did not keep him from playing and making his first home run of the series Sunday, and he is almost certain to play as long as he is needed. The presence of Babe in the game means as much to the Yanks in a psychological sense as it does in any other way. He is in there with his head and his reputation even when his arms are weak.

Homer Sails True

Ruth's homer in the ninth sailed long and true to the right field bleachers and was the one bright spot in the fading hopes of the Yankee rooters. The Babe's feat was given a noisy hand, but while it enabled Babe to realize an ambition it didn't satisfy him nearly so much as if it had scored two runners ahead of him.

Jim Mullie, who some years back organized the New York Nationals, grinned his satisfaction at the result. When Jim's team was winning a game in the old days he remarked "Ah, they're Giants in playing as Giants in stature."

Today he said: "I named them well. I think they'll win now."

DUCKS FRIGHTENED AWAY BY AIRPLANE COMPLAIN HUNTERS

MADISON, Wis.—Airplane traffic rules had their first airing in the police court here, when complainant was registered that a flyer in his sailing about the lakes had frightened away the ducks. Hunters protested to the police, but lacking means or powers to enforce airplane regulations, the traffic may continue legally. The officer, however, agreed to skirt the birds by larger margins hereafter.

Hundreds of fans who have attended every game of the series hoping to be present when Babe Ruth hit a home run were out of the park when the Baltimore connected for four bases in the ninth Sunday. They had left early to avoid the crush thinking the game was as good as over.

The Yanks were happy in their defeat before the game with the band alongside them. "Better save your joy until later," the Giants yelled to them. But the band played on, and the Yankees danced to the music. Later they danced to Douglas' pitching and it wasn't music to them.

It was excellent football weather. The vendors persisted in trying to sell ice cream and cold drinks. There were few bidders. The Giants kept warm in warm blanket coats while the Yankees had heavy sweaters.

Pipe and Kelly, rival first basemen, made their first hits of the series. Pipe's was a single and Kelly's a double. Both agreed their hits would be as good as sulphur and molasses for them.

Contrib.—"You sit down on every joke I write."

Ed.—"Well, I wouldn't if there was any point to them." —The Christian Advocate (New York).

FANS SHIVER WHILE SULLIVAN BAFFLES NELSON CREW, 2-0

Game Called off in Eighth on Account of Rain; Schultz Allows Six Hits

About five hundred cold and shivering fans rattled the planks in the grand stand at Copeland park Sunday afternoon while "Lefty" Sullivan and his mates from Genoa took the Nelson Clothing company baseball team into camp for a count of 2 to 0.

The game was called in the eighth inning on account of rain before the Nelsons went to bat.

Despite the adverse weather condition which was more appropriate for football, the teams battled through in good form. Genoa was credited with three errors while the locals escaped with but one.

Sullivan, the big southpaw and slippery elm tactician, proved too much of a baffler for local barmen who faced him in the eighth inning with the same general result. Beranek collected the only hit for the north side, getting a clean single over second in the fourth inning. The hit came close to counting a score but Schultz, who had walked and been sacrificed to second, was caught at home plate on the fast relay of the ball. Once before did the locals threaten to score.

Schultz' feat of allowing but six hits to the Genoans would have done him credit on a warm day. His strikeout list totaling eleven, was one more than chalked up by the big left hander. Sullivan permitted four barmen bases on balls, while the local man allowed but one.

Hastings and Curtis found Schultz for a triple each which were the only extra base hits in the game. The following figures tell the story:

CARDINAL FOLLOWERS NOT OVER OPTIMISTIC ABOUT PROSPECTS IN TITLE RACE

BY BOB DUNN

Wisconsin has defeated Lawrence and South Dakota college, both decisively, but neither by an overwhelming score. Badger enthusiasts were not as optimistic about the prospects of the team for the conference season after the display of talent against the Dakotans in Saturday's contest.

South Dakota put up the scrappiest attack that has been seen in a preliminary game at Madison in many years. The western eleven was more aggressive than Lawrence and they were even stronger on the defense.

The repeated weak showing of the Cardinal line in action against the Aggies was due largely to one weak spot in the right side of the line with Nelson on the injured list and Christensen, native of Norway, substituting at right guard after Schermecker had been taken out. Gude also played at right tackle during the latter part of the contest.

Fumbling, poor passing and weakness in the line were again the outstanding faults in Wisconsin's play and effort will be concentrated on remedying these difficulties before the long string of conference contests which will start with Northwestern at Evanston this week.

Although the Wisconsin line appeared weak, it is possible that Coach Richards will succeed in bolstering up the one obviously weak spot with the result that the line would show a betterment of more than a hundred percent, for after the opposing team on Saturday discovered the hole, they pounded away at the weak spot during the entire latter part of the contest. Coach Richards has his eye on the Illinois contest and also on the Cornish game which furnish the attraction for the big homecoming game at Madison on October 29. Northwestern has now been defeated in two conference games by Chicago and Minnesota and is out of the running. In the contest, this week, however, Badger followers will have an opportunity of measuring to some extent how the team stacks up with the caliber of talent possessed by the other Big Ten institutions.

One possible thing that will knock Wisconsin's chances in the conference decisively will be a list of injuries. For unlike other years, the Badgers are largely dependent on a few outstanding stars and on these men remaining in the race through the year. Plans for the remainder of the team are being made. Should Bunge, Bradner and Tobell be put on the injured list, for instance, the Badger forward wall would be knocked to shreds.

To date the Badgers have not been forced in either of the opening tilts to show any of the work they have been getting at Camp Randall since work with a regular squad began in earnest a few weeks ago. Just what kind of an attack is being prepared by Coach Richards for Illinois and Minnesota is uncertain. The Iowa game this week, however, will give the Badger scouts a good line on the kind of ball being played by Illinois to form the basis for a week's intense practice on defensive play.

ROD & REEL BY DIXIE CARROLL

A LONE HUNTER

Like the musky, the pickerel is a lone hunter; he is a moody sort of guy and don't like company. He will locate a likely looking feeding ground and if of size enough to defend it will stick around that place all season. He is not much of a rover, and if you get a good strike from one of them in a certain location and then lose him, you can't count on the lake and come back and feel confident of finding him in the same waters and willing to take another chance at your bait.

I know of one 18-pounder that had a hangout in a little cove close up to the narrows and he stuck around that same piece of water after being hooked three times, until at last he struck twice on the same day and joined his ancestors in the happy fishing waters.

This pick was just wise enough to immediately slip below and snag the line on a big old pine that had wind-fallen out from the shore and twining the line among the stubby branches he secured leverage enough to break the line or tear the barbed hook from his undershot jaw. That I know this, is because he pulled the trick on my pal's spoon that afternoon, and he still had his golden spoon firmly

STOCKS REACTIONARY

NEW YORK—An early reaction on the stock exchange Monday was most pronounced among foreign, Canadian and European stocks. Consolidated Cigar, Famous Players and Remington Typewriter first preferred, which declined to points in record decline. Other stocks were held by the less prominent ones such as California Petroleum preferred, Standard Oil of California, Pacific Oil and Sugar Trusts, which declined to points in record decline. The industrial and railroad groups are sluggish and irregular. Leaders with one exception were slightly lower, probably on profit-taking. British and French exchanges showed decided strength. Call money opened at 5 1/2.

It was the only important exception to the former tone of the stock market at the opening. From Pacific fell 1/2 point after transcontinentals as well as cotton carriers were fractionally lower. The construction stock market was held by the low grade shares. Pan-American Petroleum rose a point and General Asphalt, Dutch and American made moderate advances. The net became somewhat unsettled within the first half hour as a result of selling of American Petroleum and Standard.

WHEAT STRENGTHENS
Advance Follows Bearish Movement
CHICAGO, Ill.—Wheat prices developed some strength Monday because of the government report showing smaller stock of wheat and corn than had been looked for. Notice was also taken of bullish comment as to the well sold out condition of the wheat crop. On the other hand, however, western connections were sellers during the morning, instrumental in causing reactions. Opening prices, which varied from unchanged to two cents higher, with December $1.10 1/2, $1.11 and May $1.14 1/2, then fell to $1.13 1/2 and $1.14 1/2. Large receipts weakened corn. After opening at 2 1/2 cents higher, including December 18 to 20 cents, the market sagged to 2 1/2 cents. The market closed at 2 1/2 cents. The market closed at 2 1/2 cents. ## AUDIENCE LEAVE UNDER SPELL OF "WAY DOWN EAST"

Still Deeply Impressed When Great Griffith Masterpiece is Over

TEARS AND APPLAUSE

Visitor Seeing Picture for Third
Time Praises Music

THEY were not talkative crowds that streamed out of the La Crosse theater Sunday afternoon and evening after watching the opening performance of "Way Down East." They were too deeply impressed to be talking.

Occasionally someone would say, "Wonderful!" "Tremendous!" or some similar comment. But it seemed that most of the people passing through the lobby were still under the spell of the mighty climax with which the picture comes to a close. Perhaps the observation of one heavy-set chap to his wife after the evening show summed up opinion fairly well. He said it almost with relief, as if it were pushed out by high pressure of emotion: "Good Lord, ain't that a picture!"

And then said no more. He and his wife walked out in silence.

It Brings Tears

Certainly "Way Down East" "gets to" the audience. When lights went up at the intermission between acts there was a suspicious profusion of handkerchiefs in evidence throughout the house—and not all were in the hands of women. And in the scene in act two in which the unfortunate heroine baptizes her dying baby, a scene that ranks as one of the most intensely emotional that memory recalls upon the screen, one had only to listen to hear heavy sighs with the tell-tale catch of tears in them, even outright sobs, from all over the audience.

Perhaps the supreme tribute of the public to effective work upon the screen is applause. When people applaud a picture it is because they are driven irresistibly to vent their feelings. One applauds at a play to thank and encourage the actors, but on the screen there is no such element. Applause must be unthinking and spontaneous, or not at all. So when the audience at "Way Down East" make the La Crosse theater echo with their hand-clapping during the thrilling rescue at the brink of the falls it is evidence of how profoundly they are stirred, of how strongly they have been carried away by the shadows on the screen.

Saw it Third Time

It seems safe to predict for "Way Down East" an exceptionally successful week in La Crosse. It is receiving the best of all advertising—the unsolicited praise of every one who has seen it, urging friends not to miss the chance. And, indeed, many of the people who attended Sunday are planning to go again. There was one man in the matinee audience who told the management after the performance that he had seen it twice before in other cities, and that he found it no less amazing and enthralling in his third experience. Incidentally, it is interesting to note his comment on the way the picture is handled here.

"I've seen it with bigger orchestras," he said, "but never did the music fit the picture as this afternoon. When I saw it before the musicians did not seem to follow the picture so closely, and I don't think they played with as much understanding of the scenes. The Beyerstedts are doing a fine piece of work that is worthy of the picture."

It was a gratifying tribute to the management, for they have spared no effort to surround the masterpiece of Griffith with a presentation that should harmonize in every way. Even the stage has been carefully set with a rural background for the scene of the burning, that from the rise of the curtain adds in suggesting the character of the play.

"FOUR HORSEMEN" IS CALLED SUPREME AS FILM ATTRACTION

An Epic Tale Transferred to the Screen; Humor and Gaiety
Also Creeps Into Scenes

An epic tale of surging passion sweeping from the wide plains of the Argentine through the fascinating frivolities of pre-war Paris into the blazing turmoil of the German invasion of northern France was unfolded Sunday at the Riviera theater. It was the first showing of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the $1,000,000 Rex Ingram production made for Metro, which has been the screen sensation of New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Los Angeles.

The picture adapted from the great novel of Vicente Blasco Ibañez, has intensified the dramatic force of the original story and Sunday it held the spectators breathlessly intent as with swift, sure strokes it hammered home the terror and grandeur of the war—and a great deal of the humor and light-hearted gaiety that kept bubbling up through the turgid stream of struggling humanity when the world was in arms.

The director, Rex Ingram, has succeeded in concentrating the great struggle in a series of unforgettable pictures that flash out the quivering sense of life at white heat. He makes us see above the struggle the awesome figures of the four horsemen, Conquest, War, Famine and Death, prophesied by St. John in the Book of the Apocalypse, charging into our very hearts. And through it all is the deeply human, deeply moving spectacle of intensely real people in their baffled attempts to readjust themselves to the demands of war days. In this picture the war is realized on a gigantic scale with a greatness of imagination that dwarfs all other ambitious attempts that the screen has seen.

"The Four Horsemen" is the fulfillment of the promise of a noble art in pictures. In the cast that included fifty principals and 2,500 extras, the performance of brilliance were those of Rudolph Valentino, Alice Terry, Concomer Cannon, Joseph Swickard, Brinsley Shaw, Alan Hale, Bridgetta Clark, Mabel Van Buren, John Salsopolis, Nigel de Bruin, Virginia Warwick, Derek Gifford, Stuart Holmes and Edward Connolly.

No other phonograph can do it!

No difference!

No other phonograph even dares the test which the New Edison underwent last Friday, before a large audience at La Crosse theater.

That fact is something for you to think about. The test of comparison with living artists is the only phonograph test which means anything. It is the only way in which a phonograph can irrefutably prove its realism. It is the most drastic of all phonograph tests. To sustain it, requires absolutely perfect realism,—nothing less.

Last Friday, the New Edison stood by the side of Helen Davis and Victor Young in La Crosse theater. If you were there, you heard the living art and the RE-CREATED art brought into direct comparison. You know that there was no difference between the two.

By this wonderful performance, the New Edison has placed itself apart from all other phonographs and talking machines. It alone has sustained this drastic test. It alone has proved, concretely and conclusively, that it gives you the living performances of great artists.
